

EDUCATION THAT MATTERS

A 2-DAY ONLINE CONFERENCE

Schedule compatible with both Australia/Asia & North/South America Time Zones

19-20 March 2022, 9:00 - 14:00 Melbourne Time

18-19 March 2022, 18:00 - 23:00 Boston Time

What and how should students learn to thrive in today's complex world?
What education will matter most to the lives they are likely to lead?

Some schools aspire to develop learners who are active and empathetic citizens while others encourage complex reasoning or creativity. Join Project Zero researchers and other educators from around the world to reflect critically on the purposes of education for the world of today and tomorrow. Explore the latest research and practices that can have direct, applicable and powerful applications to your context. Topics include:

Leading Learning & Change

Creating a Culture of Thinking

Growing Up in the Digital Age

Promoting Civic Engagement

Developing Agency by Design

Supporting Playful Learning

Since 2010, Project Zero at the Harvard Graduate School of Education has convened high-quality professional development experiences that have proven to be transformative for attendees. Education That Matters is relevant to educators of all subjects and ages-- teachers, administrators, school leaders, museum educators, homeschoolers, those working in informal learning environments, and more.

The conference is produced in association with the Center for the Advancement and Study of International Education (CASIE).
